11 ORDER

12 Presently before the court is a letter regarding the denial of a 28 U.S.C. § 2255 petition by 13 Luis A. Gonzalez-Largo filed on August 15, 2012. (Doc. # 378). The court denied the § 2255
14 petition. (Doc. # 375). From the letter it appears that petitioner believes the court denied his § 2255
15 petition because he failed to file a reply. (See doc. # 378). Petitioner asks the court to “take this letter 16 under advisement and return confirmation of retracting order issued.” (Doc. # 378). The court will 17 construe this letter as both a motion to reconsider the denial of the § 2255 petition and a motion 18 seeking a certificate of appealability.

19 I. Reconsideration of the denial of the § 2255 petition

20 When reviewing a motion to reconsider the denial of a 2255 petition, the district court should 21 consider any new evidence, change in law, clear error, or manifest injustice. See Culler v. Board of 22 Prison Terms, 405 Fed.Appx. 263, 264 ("The district court also did not abuse its discretion when 23 denying Culler's motions for reconsideration since Culler did not identify any new evidence, change 24 in law, clear error, or manifest injustice.") (discussing § 2254 habeas petitions).

25 In petitioner's letter, he correctly states that "in the very first paragraph" denying his § 2255
26 petition the court stated that petitioner "failed to file a replay [sic]." (Doc. # 378.) Petitioner then 27 devotes the remainder of the letter explaining that he was not late in filing a reply. (See doc. # 378).
28 In the court's order denying the § 2255 petition, the court did not deny the petition because petitioner did not file a non-mandatory reply. Rather, the court dedicates over three pages of discussion and

1 clearly denies each of petitioner's four claims raised in the § 2255 on their respective merits. (See 2 doc. # 375). Simply, the court denied the § 2255 on its merits, and not because of the omission of 3 a reply. The court denies the motion to reconsider the § 2255 petition.

4 II. Certificate of appealability

5 Rule 11(a) of the Rules Governing Section 2255 Proceedings for the United States District
6 Courts states that "[a] motion to reconsider a denial does not extend the time to appeal." Rule 11(b)
7 then states that "Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 4(a) governs the time to appeal an order entered 8 under these rules." Under Rule 4(a) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, petitioner's window 9 to file a notice of appeal has not yet closed.

10 The order denying the § 2255 petition is silent on the issue of a certificate of appealability.
11 Before the petitioner can appeal the denial of a § 2255 motion, a certificate of appealability must 12 issue. See 28 U.S.C. § 2253. Further, a certificate of appealability may issue "only if the applicant 13 has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right," 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2), and 14 the certificate of appealability must "indicate which specific issue or issues satisfy" the requirement, 15 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(3). To make this substantial showing, petitioner must demonstrate "that 16 reasonable jurists could debate whether (or, for that matter, agree that) the petitioner should have been 17 resolved in a different manner or that the issues presented were adequate to deserve encouragement 18 to proceed further." Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 483-84 (2000).

19 Petitioner has failed to make a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right for 20 all the reasons clearly articulated in the denial of the § 2255 petition. (See doc. # 375). The letter 21 presently before the court (doc. # 378) only raises the issue of the court not considering petitioner's
22 reply. However, the court not considering a non-mandatory reply in a § 2255 petition does not 23 constitute the denial of a constitutional right. A certificate of appealability is denied.

Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED ADJUDGED AND DECREED that petitioner's letter construed as a motion to reconsider and a motion seeking a certificate of appealability (doc. # 378) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED.

DATED September 6, 2012.
